MR. WILLIAM F. CLARK
Superintendent

The greatest deeds are yet to be done, the greatest melodies yet to be written. The present revolution in science and production brings us benefits which former generations never dreamed of. But these inventions will become insignificant in comparison with those of the future—your future.

You must be worthy to live in and be a part of the most promising era the world has ever known. You will need to know more about things and how better to apply this knowledge through an understanding of mathematics, science, languages and the manual skills. But most of all you will need the knowledge and wisdom of man's experience with freedom in order to develop civic competence that this country may continue to be the hope of a free world.

*William F.
Clark*

MR. LEON REGAN
Principal

The horizon appears to limit our world but we know our world extends far beyond the horizon. More and more we realize that our horizons are expanding and exposing new areas only dreamed of in the past. Your horizons can be unlimited if you train yourself to take advantage of that knowledge which is the key to the great curves of time and space.

OUR

The journal of the class of '60 begins in the misty past of Freshman year. Aside from a frightening maze of corridors we remember best our first event, our cake sale. It was, of course, a great success.

As we journeyed on into Sophomore year, we were the proud sponsors of the St. Patrick's Day Dance, a gala "affaire."

At last we are upperclassmen—Juniors. Three major events heralded this year. There were a thousand laughs at the, as usual, spectacularly successful Sadie Hawkins' Dance. The hit presentation of the year, "Showboat Specialties," was a sell-out and a lot of fun for all who participated. "Ebbtide," our Junior Prom, was a dream in different shades of green and a night to remember.

Misty

JOURNAL

But now we are Seniors. It is our turn to sponsor the ever-popular football dances and with our wonderfully successful team they could not help but be a hit. Our Senior Play "Good Night Ladies" displayed the dramatic talent of some of our classmates and provided hilarious entertainment. "Misty" was the theme of the biggest night of all, the Senior Prom. Blue and silver decorations provided a dream world for all.

And now, as we near the end of our journey, comes the grand finale, graduation. As the ritual of the traditional ceremonies is performed, we smile rather sadly remembering the happy days at N.A.H.S. as we set sail for tomorrow.
